

Another shipwreck!

Encore un naufrage!

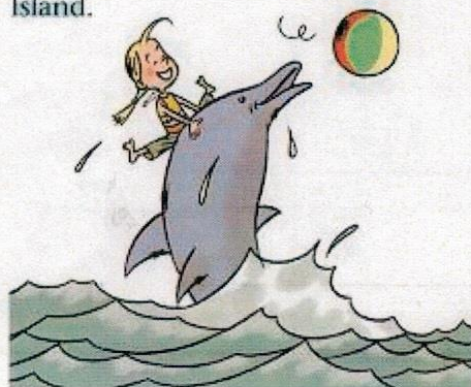

The following days, poor Feather worked hard for Yellow-Beard. He had to scrub the deck, peel the potatoes, wash the dishes, do the washing and polish the captain's boots.

But Yellow-Beard was never satisfied: he spent his time shouting at him!

Thank goodness Little-Hook helped him a lot, since they were friends. He even introduced him to Flip-Flop, his tame dolphin. Flip-Flop is great fun, the dolphin jumps over the waves with a ball on its nose.

In the evening, the children chat on the deck. Feather tells his friend about his family, and Little-Hook, who is sorry he is an only child, asks him a lot of questions, especially about Charlotte.

One morning, a travelling seagull delivered a message: Black-Beard, the famous pirate, was inviting his friends, fierce Raging-Beard, cruel Foamy-Beard, old Rum-Beard and horrible Yellow-Beard, to a great party on Tortuga Island.

Yellow-Beard entrusted The Hurricane to Little-Hook, and left with his crew in his rowing boat.

Jumping for joy, Feather and Little-Hook exclaimed:

– Hurray! We're free, we're going to have fun!

The next day, the boys ate so much roast shark that they fell asleep after the meal. The Hurricane began to drift slowly at first, then faster and faster.

In the afternoon, a terrible shock shook the ship: The Hurricane had hit a desert island.